PHILADELPHIA (Sept. 9, 2019) – The Philadelphia District Attorney's Office (DAO) on Monday welcomed the first new class of ADAs recruited entirely by District Attorney Larry Krasner along with First Assistants Robert Listenbee, Jr., and Judge Carolyn Temin.

The group of more than 60 prosecutors is the largest and most diverse class of new ADAs ever hired by the Philadelphia DAO, hailing from top law schools across the country including those at historically black colleges and universities (HBCUs).

"I'm pleased to welcome this incredibly bright group of new prosecutors who are fully committed to seeking justice for the citizens of Philadelphia," District Attorney Krasner said. "In order to effect real and lasting reform of our system of criminal justice, we must make sure they are inclusive and representative of the communities they serve."
